

Dr. Keith Rogers, DBA, PMP

Serving in the role of Vice President for Student Affairs at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas (UNLV), Dr. Keith Rogers is a distinguished leader in education and student development. His journey to this esteemed position reflects his commitment to academic excellence, community service, and mentorship. In addition to his role at UNLV, Dr. Rogers holds the position of Vice-Chair for the Las Vegas-Clark County Library District Board of Trustees, further showcasing his dedication to fostering community engagement and enhancing educational resources.

Dr. Rogers earned his Doctorate in Business from Grand Canyon University, complemented by an MBA from UNLV. As a first-generation student in his family, he knows first-hand the transformative power of education. Driven by a passion for fostering well-rounded, compassionate, civic-minded young adults, he has dedicated his career to shaping the next generation of leaders in business, technology, government, and education.

As a mentor, Dr. Rogers plays a pivotal role in guiding young minority men into well-rounded individuals. Through his involvement with a fraternity, he provides guidance and support, helping his mentees navigate academic and personal challenges. His goal is to contribute to the development of empowered, confident individuals who are not only successful academically but also contribute positively to their communities.

In addition to his professional achievements and dedication to mentoring, Dr. Rogers is an Army veteran and actively volunteers and serves as a board member for the Community Outreach Medical Center, a local organization dedicated to improving healthcare access.
